APPENDIX TWO
WAR POWERS CONSULTATION COMMITTEE
PROPOSALS AT-A-GLANCE

This document reflects due diligence done by the Commission’s staff, but not necessarily the views of the Commission.
This appendix summarizes various proposals to reform the War Powers Resolution of 1973, which emphasized the need for greater consultation between the President and Congress. Many of these proposals established specific congressional consultation groups with which the President would meet, as well as when and how these meetings would or should occur.

LEGISLATIVE PROPOSALS

Jones - 2007

Date: September 25, 2007
Sponsor: Rep. Walter B. Jones
Title: H.J. Res. 53, “Constitutional War Powers Amendments of 2007”—Statute to repeal and completely replace WPR

Membership: Executive-Legislative Consultative Group

- Consultation required under “Constitutional War Powers Amendments of 2007” shall include “participation by:”
  - President and those senior executive branch officials designated by the President
  - Speaker, President pro tempore, Majority Leader and Minority Leader of the House and Senate

  Total: 6 members, plus the President and additional executive branch officials

Consultation:

- President shall consult with Congress and must obtain a declaration of war or specific statutory authority before the “initiation of hostilities,” except in three emergency situations—an armed attack on the U.S., an armed attack on U.S. forces, or the evacuation of U.S. citizens.
  - In those emergency situations, the President shall consult with Congress “in every possible instance” before the initiation of hostilities.
  - Regardless, after initiating hostilities under one of the three emergency situations, the President must submit a detailed report to Congress within 48 hours.
  - If Congress has not authorized the President’s use of force within 30 days, funding will automatically be cut off.

Summary: President shall consult with Congress and must obtain a declaration of war or specific statutory authority before the “initiation of hostilities,” except in three emergency situations. After initiating hostilities under one of the three enumerated emergency situations, Congress must authorize the president’s use of force within 30 days, or funding will automatically be cut off.
DeFazio - 1999

Date: March 24, 1999
Sponsor: Rep. Peter DeFazio
Title: H.J. Res. 42, “War Powers Amendments of 1999”—statutory amendments to WPR

Membership: Executive-Legislative Consultative Group
- Consultation required under revised WPR includes “participation by:"
  - President and his designated senior executive branch officials
  - Members of House and Senate designated by Speaker and President pro tempore
Total: Number of members TBD

Consultation:
- President should consult with Congress “in every possible instance” before the use of force.
- “Consultation” under the WPR requires:
  - President to ask “Members of Congress” for advice before the decision is made to use force.
  - “All relevant information” be made available to Members of Congress.
- “Consultation” is not met “if the Congress is merely informed.”

Summary: President must ask Members of Congress for advice and opinions prior to the use of force, and those Members must include the members of a consultation committee.
Hamilton - 1993

Date: October 28, 1993
Sponsor: Rep. Lee Hamilton
Title: Consultation Act of 1993 (H.R. 3405)—statute to supplement existing WPR

  - Sec. of State and Foreign Affairs / Relations;
  - Sec. of Defense and Armed Services;
  - DCI and Select Intelligence;
  - NSA and congressional leadership.
- Every three months, President meets with CLG.
- Purpose of consultation is to identify situations in which force might be necessary or to examine how use of force complies with statutory guidelines elsewhere in proposed Act.

Summary: 18-Member committee to meet with President every three months or on his own or committee’s initiative. Also, monthly meetings between Secretaries of State and Defense and Director of Central Intelligence and their corresponding congressional committees, and monthly meetings between congressional leadership and the National Security Advisor—all to identify when force may be used.
SCHOLARLY PROPOSALS

Date: December 1998
Proponent: Peter Raven-Hansen
Title: “Weak Bill” reform of WPR—statute seeking to preserve much of the current WPR language

Membership: Consultation Group (CG)
- Speaker of the House (Co-Chair)
- President pro tempore of Senate
- Senate Majority (Co-Chair), Minority Leaders
- House Majority, Minority Leaders
- Additional Members of Congress by unanimous designation
  Total: 6 members (minimum)

Consultation:

Prior Consultation Required
- President to consult with CG before introducing armed forces into hostilities or where imminent hostilities are present:
  - Except when emergency does not permit time to do so,
  - Or when extraordinary circumstances require complete secrecy.

Other Consultation
- President must consult with CG at “regular intervals” after the introduction of armed forces into hostilities or where imminent hostilities are present.
- President must consult with CG at request of Co-Chairs or majority of CG until armed forces are removed from hostilities or hostilities are no longer imminent.

Summary: 6-Member committee to meet with President before he introduces armed forces into hostilities under the WPR absent emergency or extraordinary circumstances. President to consult with committee regularly or at request of the committee while armed forces are in hostilities or where hostilities are imminent.

Date: December 1998
Proponent: Peter Raven-Hansen
Title: “Strong Bill” reform of War Powers Resolution—statute

Membership: Consultation Group (CG)
- Speaker of the House (Co-Chair)
- President pro tempore of Senate
- Senate Majority (Co-Chair), Minority Leaders
- House Majority, Minority Leaders
- Additional Members of Congress by unanimous designation
  Total: 6 members (minimum)

Consultation:

Prior Consultation Required
- President to consult with CG before each “use of armed forces abroad.”
- If prior notice not given because of national security emergency, President provides Congress statement of reasons for emergency.
- “Consult” means for the President to provide CG
  - Information material to the reaching a judgment concerning the advisability of the use of armed forces abroad.
  - Sufficient time before the use of armed forces for CG to consider information, reach a judgment, and, if appropriate, to refer to Committees of Congress or for CG member to submit legislation.
  - Opportunity for CG to communicate views to President.

Continuing Consultation
- President to consult with CG at “regular intervals” after the introduction of armed forces into hostilities or imminent hostilities.

Regular Consultation
- President and Secretary of State shall meet with CG “to facilitate consultation”
  - At regular intervals.
  - Whenever the Co-Chairmen or a majority of CG requests.

Summary: 6-Member committee to engage in detailed consultation with the President prior to each use of force, and to engage in regular consultation with the President both generally and while armed forces are subject to hostilities or imminent hostilities.

Vance - 1984

Date: 1984
Proponent: Former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance
Title: No title—Amendment of WPR
Membership
- Consultation with congressional leadership, including: Majority and Minority Leaders of Senate and House; Speaker of the House; Chairs and Ranking Members of Senate and House Armed Forces and Foreign Affairs/Relations Committees
Total: 9 members
Consultation:
- Define “consultation” under WPR so that it requires the President to “discuss fully and seek the advice and counsel” of congressional leadership.
- Apply consultation to all actions listed of reportable events under current Section 4(a)(1) of WPR.
- “Regular and full” consultation between the President and congressional leadership.
Summary: 9-Member committee to consult with President both regularly and when consultation is required under WPR.
Reveley - 1981

Date: 1981
Proponent: W. Taylor Reveley, III
Title: Joint Committee on Foreign and Military Affairs—established pursuant to legislative rule

Membership:
- To include both Senators and Representatives.
- Party caucuses would be responsible for membership
Total: Number of members TBD

Consultation:
- Committee should be given full authority to sponsor legislation.
- Committee should periodically state congressional view of foreign policy priorities, perhaps in response to an annual message from the President.
- Congress could grant crisis authority to such a committee so it could assemble to collaborate with the President quickly and quietly.

Summary: Joint House-Senate committee to offer congressional view on foreign and military policy, as well as to consult with the President quickly when necessary.
